LEGION DEMANDS BONUS ACTION

HUNDREDS HELP PREPARE MARY'S TROUSSEAU

COLLECTION OF GIFTS BEGINS TO TAX PALACE

Many Articles of Bride's Apparel Gifts From Skilled Groups

CLOAK OF WHITE FUR

Most Beautiful Cloth Ever Woven for Bridal Train

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(By The Associated Press.)—Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles spent the last morning before their wedding receiving a number of individuals and deputations whose offerings swelled the vast collection of gifts which is already overflowing the state rooms of Buckingham Palace.

To everyone bringing a present the princess expressed her thanks. During the past fortnight she has voiced dozens of these acknowledgments daily, rushing from the receiving rooms from time to time to give her dressmakers opportunity for the necessary trying her many new gowns.

LEAVE THEIR GIFTS.

Despite the fact, however, that Princess Mary has devoted so many hours to the receiving of presents, the demands upon her time have been so great that hundreds of persons have been obliged to leave their gifts with her secretaries or the palace attendants and to such persons written acknowledgments will be sent.

Among the gifts received today was a pair of silver candlesticks from Rodman Wanamaker of New York, presented for him by Colonel George Wood, a personal representative in London. Princess Mary thanked Colonel Wood and said the candlesticks would be placed among her choicest possessions and would always be greatly treasured.

HUNDREDS ASSIST.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(By The Associated Press.)—Several hundred men, women and children assisted King and Queen in the designing and manufacture of various articles of Princess Mary's trousseau for her wedding Tuesday to Viscount Lascelles.

The trades and crafts they represent range from Irish colleen embroiderers who helped make the lingerie to gold miners of Salsburgh, who made the metal from which the wedding ring was made.

Many articles of the bride's wedding apparel and travelling attire were delivered as gifts from various guilds and industries. Even the bride's bouquet is to be an evidence of good wishes from admirers—it will be presented by the Gardener's Company, one of the ancient city of London tradesmen's organizations.

Princess Mary's wedding gown, like those of her eight aunts, will be of white silk ornamented with silver tissue. What form of headpiece the bride's maid shall wear has been a subject of much consideration. At former royal weddings, the bridesmaids have worn veils. It has been suggested that those of the Princess wear wreaths of flowers or bands of silver tissue.

FAMOUS VEIL.

Princess Mary will wear the wedding veil worn successfully by Queen Victoria, Queen Alexandra and her mother, Queen Mary.

The bride has had a wonderful clock prepared for the wedding day for wear as she drives to and from the Abbey. It is of pure white tulle and is modeled upon a similar garment worn by Lady Patricia Ramsay three years ago.

Surmise as to the bridal train was aided by the announcement that a bit of the most beautiful cloth ever woven in England, had been delivered to the Princess's dressmakers for use in fashioning this part of her gown. The surface is of satin smoothness over a web of finest silver to which a backing of silk has been given that covers any slight roughness that the silver threads might offer to the touch.

SHIMMER OF WATER.

This made a soft and pliant fabric that has a wonderful shimmer like that of clear, running water under the light. The silver threads were spun in London and the finest of China silk was used.

During the weaving of this triumph of the craft, a screen of white cotton was erected about the loom to keep all dust away. The weaver is one of the few craftsmen who have mastered the intricate art of weaving a three-pile velvet.

The famous Clanciarde jewels have passed into the possession of Princess Mary but it is unlikely that she will be able to wear any of them on the day of her wedding as they have not been worn since the early days of Queen Victoria's reign and are, therefore, now hopelessly old-fashioned. The whole collection needs resetting in order to bring them into accordance with modern taste.

BRIDEGROOM IS HEIR.

From his eccentric kinsman, Lord Clanciarde, Viscount Lascelles inherited 2,000,000 pounds.

The bride has accepted a pair of Norwich-made shoes made by ex-servicemen. They are of fine cloth of silver brocade, with a true Louis XIV style.

WILD FOWLS' WINGS FROZEN STIFF IN WEIRD STORM

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich., Feb. 27.—The Michigan apple belt, ice bound since last mid-week, was a sorry spectacle today when cities and towns had broken through the frozen crust and re-established communication. Thousands of trees were down, wire lines wrecked and the ice still ranged from two to six inches in thickness. Some of the wildest fowl are seeking shelter and food in barnyards, their wings frozen stiff and clumps of ice weighing their tails.

POLICE CENTER SEARCH UPON ED. F. SANDS

Woman Tells How She Received Telegram So Soon After Murder

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—Practically all other leads to a solution of the murder of William Desmond Taylor, film director here, have failed, the police declared today as they prepared to concentrate further efforts upon a search for Edward F. Sands, Taylor's missing former butler-secretary.

It was planned to assemble new data on Sands and to compile a special bulletin for distribution to practically every peace officer in the United States. The police state they believe Sands can supply a clue to Taylor's murder.

Police Sergeant Jack Stetzle said he had gone to San Francisco to search for a woman to whom Taylor only two hours after the murder was reported to have been sent from the night of the murder and the next day.

REASON FOR TELEGRAM.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Mrs. George Freeman, Shipping Point, Stamford, Conn., explained why it was that Miss Graham of Hollywood sent her a telegram announcing the death of William Desmond Taylor only two hours after the murder picture director's body was discovered with a bullet wound through the heart.

She said that both she and Miss Graham had known Taylor here in the days when he was known as Ethel Tanager and when his daughter, Ethel Daisy, was about one year old.

Mrs. Freeman said: "When Miss Graham sent me that telegram from Los Angeles, it was for the express purpose of having me notify Taylor's daughter, Ethel Daisy Deane-Tanager, before she would read in the newspapers the account of her father's murder. That was her only motive."

NOTHING TO CONCEAL.

"Perhaps Miss Graham, by the reference she maintained when questioned by the authorities, conveyed the idea that she had something to conceal. As a matter of fact she had nothing to hide, but she took the stand that if there was anything the authorities desired to know about Mr. Taylor's private life they could be enlightened by questioning his former wife, Mrs. Robins."

"Although the telegram she sent me was timed 10:05 less than three hours after his body was found, I firmly believe the statement she has made that if there was anything she learned of the murder through the newspapers."

Heck, English hand-buffed leather poles and white kid lining. The buckle consists of a trofoil pattern looped bow of fine seed pearls on a wisp of silver tissue.

From the Worshipful Company of Glovers, Princess Mary has received a "trousseau" of gloves—plain full-length white kid gloves for the wedding and an assortment of walking, riding, driving and hunting gloves of the finest skins and made with the greatest of care.

COURT UPHOLDS WOMEN'S RIGHT TO BALLOT BOX

Suffrage Amendment Is Held Constitutional By Supreme Bench

TWIN ATTACK MADE

Suit Based on Sovereign Rights of States Is Dismissed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The woman's suffrage or nineteenth amendment was today declared constitutional by the supreme court, dismissing for want of jurisdiction the suit brought by Charles S. Fairchild of New York, who sought to challenge the constitutionality of the amendment.

DOUBLE ATTACK

The women's suffrage or nineteenth amendment to the constitution was challenged in the supreme court in proceedings instituted by Charles S. Fairchild of New York, for himself and the American Constitutional league, to enjoin the secretary of state from issuing and the attorney general from enforcing a proclamation declaring the ratification of the amendment, and by Oscar Leser and other citizens of Maryland, constituting an organization known as the "Maryland League for State Defense." The former proceedings were based on the ground that the amendment had not been validly adopted and the latter that the amendment was unconstitutional.

The federal courts in the District of Columbia and the state courts in Maryland, where the cases respectively were originally brought, ruled against the objections to the amendment. The oral arguments in the supreme court in the Fairchild case, the government contended that the secretary of state, having issued the ratification proclamation, there was nothing to restrain and that the case therefore became moot, not presenting a controversy for judicial decision. In the Leser case, the government acknowledged that the amendment had been ratified by voters who had sufficient interest to warrant their presence in court, but that the issue raised was political, one for decision by congress or the people in a referendum, rather than by adjudication in the courts. While the state of Maryland had refused to ratify the amendment, it was pointed out that it also refused to question its constitutionality.

RIGHTS OF STATES

The power of congress to propose the amendment to the state legislatures for ratification was assailed by its opponents on the ground that the people reserved to themselves in their state constitutions the right to regulate suffrage, and that the Federal government legally could not have anything to do with changing the sovereign power embodied in suffrage qualifications.

"The people were not setting up an amending agency for their own destruction," the government asserted, "in asserting that in limiting federal jurisdiction the 'sovereign people' did not intend that their agents conducting the federal government, should have the power to destroy them. Following this line of argument it was argued that the people alone by amendments to their state constitutions or by a constitutional convention called for the purpose could extend or abridge their sovereignty."

NEGRO FREEDOM

The fifteenth or race suffrage amendment adopted after the war between the states, was not a precedent, it was asserted, by the opponents because it was an expression of the "revelation of revolution," acquiesced in by all the people for the "reconstruction of the nation," by extending to the negro race freedom and equality, "for which the war was fought." Any other "restriction" for permanently registering the inextinguishable decree of the civil war would have been equally effective," it was argued.

Should it be held notwithstanding these objections that congress had constitutional power to submit the amendment for ratification by state legislatures, the prescribed three-fourths of the legislatures, required for constitutional ratification, did not give their approval, the opponents of women's suffrage insisted naming Missouri, Tennessee and West Virginia among the 36 states necessary for ratification, as not have legally acted.

TWO EXTRA VOTES

Declaring the issues presented were "political" seeking to obtain from the court an "opinion" or "construction" on the contentions raised, the government asserted that the supreme court could not be refused to deliver an "interpretation" of the law because it was beyond its power. It

SCHOOLS LOSE FOUR STARVE TOO MANY IN OBEYING RULE OF LOWER GRADES

Educator Says Only 40 Per Cent Complete Work of Eighth

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Americans have first to stop the flow of illiteracy and interior intelligence from Europe and admit only the foreigners who can straighten out their stock and heads. Dr. Frank P. Graves, president of the university of the state of New York and state commissioner of education, said today before the department of superintendence, National Education association.

"Next," he continued, "we must find some way to stop wholesale withdrawals from schools. It is intolerable that 70 per cent of our people should drop out before they are 15 and 60 per cent before they have completed the eighth grade."

"It is known that we cannot hope to predict from what stratum of society our genius will arise. We must, therefore, seek the most efficient means of determining it wherever it may be found."

THE OPPORTUNITIES are furnished for them at present in the evening courses, both in extent and variety are quite inadequate.

CHILEAN PEACHES SENT TO NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—One hundred tons of peaches, melons and vegetables, the full capacity of the ship's refrigerating plant, were landed Sunday from the steamship Essequibo, from Valparaiso and other Chilean ports.

The movement of South American products to a northern market first attempted in an experimental way last fall, has become successful enough to warrant its continuation, Chilean consular officials announced.

SEVEN PRISONERS DIG OUT WITH RAZOR

PINCKNEYVILLE, Ill., Feb. 27.—Seven prisoners made a clever escape from the Perry county jail here Saturday through a tunnel which they had dug with a razor. The men used steel from their shoes to saw the bars of their cells.

Sheriff Thimble was not aware of the delivery before one of the prisoners, Sam Oliver, Negro, was recaptured at Duquoin late Sunday night.

CITY AWAKES IN GRASP OF BITTER GALE

Windows Broken, Snow Swirled About; Houses Are Cold

TELEPHONES ARE HIT

Storm Reported to Reach Into Idaho; Salt Lake Chilly

Ogden awoke this morning to find a terrific gale blowing from the east with snow swirling about and the temperature down to an uncomfortable point.

Some windows were broken in the business district by the force of the wind and signs were cracking in a manner which seemed to menace pedestrians passing beneath.

Banaberger, Johns, Peterson, Ogden and Salt Lake worked under a heavy handicap. The storm swept with unabated violence across the wind ridge district blowing snow upon the tracks and sometimes blowing the freight off the wires.

BENCH DISTRICT HIT.

The bench district of Ogden, especially that portion nearest to the mouth of Ogden canyon, seemed to suffer the most from the storm. It was pretty hard to heat the rooms in that part of the houses against which the blast was striking.

Walking down hills was a really dangerous proposition. The sidewalks in many places were icy with packing from the snow, and this unsafe footing with the power of the wind upon one's back produced a lot of circumstances which made more than one pedestrian slip.

Reports from Salt Lake indicated that the storms there were experiencing difficulties in completing their runs on account of the heavy wind.

The first train from Salt Lake, which leaves that city at 6 a. m., was 35 minutes late in arriving in Ogden, the train being compelled to leave the wind time and again to replace the train. Between North Salt Lake and Sunset the storm was traveling at approximately 67 miles an hour, moving at the 277 m. per hour, the snow covering the tracks in many places and making fast travel impossible.

One of the Banaberger trains which left Salt Lake shortly before 5 a. m., became stalled at Farmington on account of the storm and failed to arrive in Ogden until 7:30.

South-bound travel was also hindered to some extent, the tracks on both north and south bound trains being completely covered with snow. In some places the snow was more than three feet deep.

OTHER ROADS ESCAPE.

Railroad men today stated that the storm was one of the worst experienced since November, 1919.

Travel on the east, west and north bound trains was not handicapped by the wind storm, all of the trains on the Oregon Short Line, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Utah-Idaho Central being on time.

Traffic Manager Phil Harding of the Utah-Idaho Central stated that the storm extended into Idaho but that train service on their road had not been impaired. Snow plows were rushed from Preston to the summit and placed in operation.

TELEPHONE WIRES DOWN.

Telephone service between Salt Lake and Ogden was handicapped considerably by the storm, 17 out of 19 circuits between the two cities being placed out of order. The trouble was experienced between Ogden and the Ogden Short Line, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Utah-Idaho Central being on time.

Service east, west and north of Ogden was not hindered. The service in Ogden in many parts of the city was also placed on the trouble list, due to the storm. Crews were rushed to the scenes of the breaks and service will be placed in operation again this evening if the first order type, Manager Dan Smith reported. It is estimated that the storm caused damage to the telephone company of more than $2500.

EARLY FIRE CAUSES HALF MILLION LOSS

PORT HURON, Mich., Feb. 27.—Fire of undetermined origin that broke out this morning in the Bank block in a little more than two hours had done damage expected to exceed $500,000. The block was destroyed.

MAC NIDER AT CAPITAL GOES TO PRESIDENT

Republican House Leader Mondell and Fordney Confer With Harding

CHIEF GETS REPORT

Commander Says Legion Is Opposed to Further Delay in Bonus Action

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Representative Mondell of Wyoming, Republican House leader, and Chairman Fordney of the house ways and means committee, are understood to have discussed the bonus situation with President Harding today at the White House. They were said to have informed the president of the rejection by the special committee of the sales tax proposals suggested by Mr. Harding.

Before seeing the president, Mr. Fordney conferred with Hanford MacNider, national commander and John Thomas Taylor, executive agent of the American Legion. Mr. MacNider and Mr. Taylor called at the White House to see the president but were informed that Mr. Harding's engagement list for the forenoon was filled. They said they would return later in the day.

Mr. MacNider said that the legion was opposed to any further delay and indicated that it was his desire to present his views to the executive. He reiterated that the legion would not be drawn into any discussion of ways and means for raising the necessary funds.

On leaving the White House both Mr. Mondell and Mr. Fordney said the house would pass a bonus bill at this session. Mr. Mondell stated that he could not say whether a measure without means of raising the revenue could be put through the senate.

Asked as to means of financing the adjusted compensation, the Republican house leader referred again to expected savings in the next fiscal year, but he would not give an estimate as to what that amount would be. He indicated that the question of the refunded foreign debt as a means of financing the bonus had been discussed up at the White House conference, but declined to say what views the president had expressed.

EX SENATOR MANTLE AND GIRL DISAPPEAR

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Former United States Senator Lee Mantle, 70 years old, of Butte, Montana, and Miss Etta Daly, of Lincoln, Neb., who obtained a marriage license here on Friday, have disappeared from the hotel in which they were staying it was revealed Sunday.

The couple flew as to their whereabouts was a record from the baggage room at the hotel which showed that their baggage was put on a New York Central train for Chicago Monday morning. Miss Daly was born in Anaconda and her father, who was a miner, died there. Her mother now lives in San Francisco and another sister, Miss Mantle, lives in Lincoln, Neb.

Miss Etta Daly is a graduate of the Nebraska State university at Lincoln, where Miss Etta Daly also attended school.

GOVERNOR UPHOLDS ACTIONS OF JURIST

OKMULGEE, Okla., Feb. 27.—Interest in the situation growing out of the recent dismissal of a grand jury investigating the affairs of the defunct Bank of Commerce here by Superior Court Judge H. R. Christopher, took a sudden spurt today with publication of a letter from Governor J. B. A. Robertson declining to accept Judge Christopher's resignation. Judge Christopher offered his resignation upon request of a citizens' mass meeting and left town. In his letter, Governor Robertson upheld the judge who contended that the grand jury had been "hand picked" and not chosen according to law.

Another grand jury was impaneled today in Judge Jack E. Bonar's court to take up the matters investigated by the dismissed grand jury.

STUDENTS GUARD COLLEGE BUILDINGS

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 27.—Thirty students working in four shifts, are watching the Trinity college buildings day and night, because of incendiary fires. They are armed with searchlights at night and have been ordered to keep especially vigilant over Seabury hall, where three professors and their wives reside.

The student patrols have also been ordered to refrain from putting their hands on surfaces in case of another fire. In order finger prints may not be obliterated. The Trinity Trinity's weekly publication, has suspended temporarily. Its editor-in-chief stated that its editors and reporters were unable to stay up all night doing guard duty and also write copy.
